The North Foreland Lighthouse stands on the site of one of the most ancient lighthouses in the world; even in the early days of history a beacon of some description stood on this spot, and here stood Ptolemy's Cantium. The present building is 63 feet high, and replaces the former structure of 1636 which was destroyed by fire in 1683. The light has recently been greatly improved and fitted with patent reflectors, and is now visible for a radius of over 30 miles.
